Oxford Textbook of Medical Education Kieran Walsh, 2016 Providing a comprehensive and evidence based reference guide for those who have a strong and scholarly interest in medical education the Oxford Textbook of Medical Education contains everything the medical educator needs to know in order to deliver the knowledge skills and behaviour that doctors need The book explicitly states what constitutes best practice and gives an account of the evidence base that corroborates this Describing the theoretical educational principles that lay the foundations of best practice in medical education the book gives readers a through grounding in all aspects of this discipline Contributors to this book come from a variety of different backgrounds disciplines and continents producing a book that is truly original and international

Cyber Resilience of Systems and Networks Alexander Kott, Igor Linkov, 2018-05-30 This book introduces fundamental concepts of cyber resilience drawing expertise from academia industry and government Resilience is defined as the ability to recover from or easily adjust to shocks and stresses Unlike the concept of security which is often and incorrectly conflated with resilience resilience refers to the system s ability to recover or regenerate its performance after an unexpected impact produces a degradation in its performance A clear understanding of distinction between security risk and resilience is important for developing appropriate management of cyber threats The book presents insightful discussion of the most current technical issues in cyber resilience along with relevant methods and procedures Practical aspects of current cyber resilience practices and techniques are described as they are now and as they are likely to remain in the near term The bulk of the material is presented in the book in a way that is easily accessible to non specialists Logical consistent and continuous discourse covering all key topics relevant to the field will be of use as teaching material as well as source of emerging scholarship in the field A typical chapter provides introductory tutorial like material detailed examples in depth elaboration of a selected technical approach and a concise summary of key ideas

Manual Asymmetries, Handedness and Motor Performance Pamela Bryden, Andrea Helen Mason, Claudia L. R. Gonzalez, 2016-06-10 The performance of most tasks with one hand typically the right is a uniquely human characteristic Not only do people prefer to use one hand rather than the other but also they usually perform tasks faster and more accurately with this hand The study of manual asymmetries and what such performance differences between the two hands reveal about brain organization and motor function has been a topic of considerable research over the last several decades The aim of this Research Topic is to review and further explore the origins of manual asymmetries and their relationship to handedness unimanual and bimanual motor performance and brain function The articles included here involve original research conducted in humans or non human models species as well as theoretical perspectives review articles and meta analyses

Colorado Commission on Criminal and Juvenile Justice ... Annual Report Colorado Commission on Criminal and Juvenile Justice, 2014 Perspective Taking: building a neurocognitive framework for integrating the "social" and the "spatial" Klaus Kessler, Sarah H Creem-Regehr, Antonia

Hamilton,2015-06-08 Background Interacting with other people involves spatial awareness of one's own body and the other's body and viewpoint In the past social cognition has focused largely on belief reasoning which is abstracted away from spatial and bodily representations while there is a strong tradition of work on spatial and object representation which does not consider social interactions These two domains have flourished independently A small but growing body of research examines how awareness of space and body relates to the ability to interpret and interact with others This also builds on the growing awareness that many cognitive processes are embodied which could be of relevance for the integration of the social and spatial domains Online mental transformations of spatial representations have been shown to rely on simulated body movements and various aspects of social interaction have been related to the simulation of a conspecific's behaviour within the observer's bodily repertoire Both dimensions of embodied transformations or mappings seem to serve the purpose of establishing alignment between the observer and a target In spatial cognition research the target is spatially defined as a particular viewpoint or frame of reference FOR yet in social interaction research another viewpoint is occupied by another's mind which crucially requires perspective taking in the sense of considering what another person experiences from a different viewpoint Perspective taking has been studied in different ways within developmental psychology cognitive psychology psycholinguistics neuropsychology and cognitive neuroscience over the last few decades yet integrative approaches for channelling all information into a unified account of perspective taking and viewpoint transformations have not been presented so far Aims This Research Topic aims to bring together the social and the spatial and to highlight findings and methods which can unify research across areas In particular the topic aims to advance our current theories and set the stage for future developments of the field by clarifying and linking theoretical concepts across disciplines Scope The focus of this Research Topic is on the SPATIAL and the SOCIAL and we anticipate that all submissions will touch on both aspects and will explicitly attempt to bridge conceptual gaps Social questions could include questions of how people judge another person's viewpoint or spatial capacities or how they imagine themselves from different points of view Spatial questions could include consideration of different physical configurations of the body and the arrangement of different viewpoints including mental rotation of objects or viewpoints that have social relevance Questions could also relate to how individual differences in personality sex development culture species etc influence or determine social and spatial perspective judgements Many different methods can be used to explore perspective taking including mental chronometry behavioural tasks EEG MEG and fMRI child development neuropsychological patients virtual reality and more Bringing together results and approaches from these different domains is a key aim of this Research Topic We welcome submissions of experimental papers reviews and theory papers which cover these topics
