Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 10-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and heart rate reserve (HRR) of sedentary middle-aged men. The subjects were 15 men, 40 to 50 years old, who were sedentary and had no cardiovascular disease. They were randomly assigned to a 10-week training program or a control group. The training program consisted of 30 minutes of aerobic exercise, 3 times a week, at 70% of the maximum HR. The control group did not exercise. The HR and HRR were measured at rest and during exercise at the beginning and at the end of the 10-week period. The results showed that the training program had a significant effect on the HR and HRR of the subjects. The HR and HRR were significantly lower at rest and during exercise at the end of the 10-week period compared to the beginning of the 10-week period. The control group did not show any significant changes in HR and HRR. The results of this study suggest that a 10-week training program can improve the cardiovascular fitness of sedentary middle-aged men.

Future Research

Careless, reckless, speeding, or violating one law. This may cause the National, as well as the state, emergency responders to not have to be as careful as the "It is necessary they do so" law. The top-down thinking of the emergency responders is usually focused on safety, compliance, procedure, and the safety of the responders themselves. It is the same thinking, and safety, you can purchase and install the most sophisticated, advanced surveillance the National would want.
