Official Gazette of the United States Patent and Trademark Office ,1986      Evaluation of Fire Safety D. Rasbash,G. Ramachandran,B. Kandola,J. Watts,M. Law,2004-04-21 Fire safety is a major concern in many industries particularly as there have been significant increases in recent years in the quantities of hazardous materials in process storage or transport Plants are becoming larger and are often situated in or close to densely populated areas and the hazards are continually highlighted with incidents such as the fires and explosions at the Piper Alpha oil and gas platform and the Enschede firework factory As a result greater attention than ever before is now being given to the evaluation and control of these hazards In a comprehensive treatment of the subject unavailable elsewhere this book describes in detail the applications of hazard and risk analysis to fire safety going on to develop and apply quantification methods It also gives an explanation in quantitative terms of improvements in fire safety in association with the costs that are expended in their achievement Furthermore a quantitative approach is applied to major fire and explosion disasters to demonstrate crucial faults and events Featuring Full international coverage and a review of several major fires and explosion disasters Presentation of the properties and science of fire including the latest research Detailed coverage of the performance of fire safety measures This is an essential book for practitioners in fire safety engineering loss prevention professionals technical personnel in insurance companies as well as academics involved in fire science and postgraduate students This book is also a useful reference for fire safety officers building designers engineers in the process industries safety practitioners and risk assessment consultants      Consulting-specifying Engineer ,1989      The Construction Specifier ,1990      Rapid Visual Screening of Buildings for Potential Seismic Hazards: A Handbook Federal Emergency Agency,U. S. Department Security,2013-04-03 This FEMA 154 Report Rapid Visual Screening of Buildings for Potential Seismic Hazards A Handbook is the first of a two volume publication on a recommended methodology for rapid visual screening of buildings for potential seismic hazards The technical basis for the methodology including the scoring system and its development are contained in the companion FEMA 155 report Rapid Visual Screening of Buildings for Potential Seismic Hazards Supporting Documentation The rapid visual screening procedure RVS has been developed for a broad audience including building officials and inspectors and government agency and private sector building owners to identify inventory and rank buildings that are potentially seismically hazardous Although RVS is applicable to all buildings its principal purpose is to identify 1 older buildings designed and constructed before the adoption of adequate seismic design and detailing requirements 2 buildings on soft or poor soils or 3 buildings having performance characteristics that negatively influence their seismic response Once identified as potentially hazardous such buildings should be further evaluated by a design professional experienced in seismic design to determine if in fact they are seismically hazardous The RVS uses a methodology based on a sidewalk survey of a building and a Data Collection Form which the person conducting the survey hereafter referred to as the screener completes based on visual observation of the building from the exterior and if possible the interior. The Data Collection Form includes space for documenting building identification information including its use and size, a photograph of the building, sketches and documentation of pertinent data related to seismic performance including the development of a numeric seismic hazard score. Once the decision to conduct rapid visual screening for a community or group of buildings has been made by the RVS authority, the screening effort can be expedited by pre planning including the training of screeners and careful overall management of the process. Completion of the Data Collection Form in the field begins with identifying the primary structural lateral load resisting system and structural materials of the building. Basic Structural Hazard Scores for various building types are provided on the form and the screener circles the appropriate one. For many buildings viewed only from the exterior, this important decision requires the screener to be trained and experienced in building construction. The procedure presented in this Handbook is meant to be the preliminary screening phase of a multi phase procedure for identifying potentially hazardous buildings. Buildings identified by this procedure must be analyzed in more detail by an experienced seismic design professional. Because rapid visual screening is designed to be performed from the street with interior inspection not always possible, hazardous details will not always be visible and seismically hazardous buildings may not be identified as such. Conversely, buildings initially identified as potentially hazardous by RVS may prove to be adequate.

Buildings Energy Conservation ,1986      Handbook for the Seismic Evaluation of Buildings Ugo Morelli,1999-04 Provides a process for seismic evaluation of existing buildings in any region of seismicity. Buildings are evaluated to either the Life Safety or Immediate Occupancy Performance Level. Provides instruction to the evaluating design professional on how to determine if a building is adequately designed and constructed to resist seismic forces. All aspects of building performances are considered in terms of foundation, geologic, structural hazard, nonstructural issues. Reflects advancements in technology, incorporates design professional experience, incorporates lessons learned during recent earthquakes and much more.

 Sections cover applied mechanics, strength of materials, structural analysis, wood, steel, concrete and masonry structures, the latest codes and industry data for industry design work, building foundations including bearing and deep foundations and design for lateral effects, designing for effects of wind and earthquakes including design examples for a variety of bracing.
