Accounting Paper October 2006:

Liberalising the Accounting Curriculum in University Education Alan Sangster, Richard M.S. Wilson, 2014-10-29

This book presents the views of accounting educators accounting education policy makers and accounting practitioners from across the world on the challenging topic of liberalising the accounting curriculum within university education Accounting is a relatively new subject within universities and has been absorbed into a high level of education without any real attempt to do so within the traditional ethos of a liberal arts education In this book the logic of teaching using the liberal arts is described and contrasted with the practical vocational training approach of teaching which has formed the foundation of accountancy courses for many years A proposal to change this established practice by integrating the liberal arts into the university accounting curriculum is followed by a series of short chapters which address the relevance validity and worthiness of the proposed approach Comments and counter arguments are then discussed before further chapters illustrate how the proposed change may be achieved in a variety of different contexts ranging from that of the global financial crisis which began in 2008 to the inclusion of ethics and sustainability within the accounting curriculum This book will aid those teaching accounting in universities to improve the design of their accounting degree programmes by moving away from an excessive emphasis on technical skills towards a broader consideration of a liberal contextualisation of the accounting curriculum This book was originally published as a special issue of Accounting Education an international journal

The Interface of Accounting Education and Professional Training Elaine Evans, Roger Juchau, Richard M.S.

Wilson, 2014-07-16 Over many decades the global development of professional accounting education programmes has been undertaken by higher education institutions professional accounting bodies and employers These institutions have sometimes co operated and sometimes been in conflict over the education and or training of future accounting professionals These ongoing problems of linkage and closure between academic accounting education and professional training have new currency because of pressures from students and employers to move accounting preparation onto a more efficient economic and practical basis The Interface of Accounting Education and Professional Training explores current elements of the interface between the academic education and professional training of accountants in Australia New Zealand South Africa and the UK It argues for a reassessment of the considerations and requirements for developing professional accounting programs which can make a student capable of being an accountant the academy ready to be an accountant the workplace and professional in being an accountant the professional bodies This book was originally published as a special issue of Accounting Education An International Journal

Transatlantic Regulation Susanne Lütz, 2016-03-16 The European and American economies are closely interlinked as mutually important investment and trading partners The growing intensity of economic interdependence has spurred the transatlantic coordination of rules and standards that can lead to the formation of non tariff barriers to transatlantic commerce But despite impressive government to government efforts to eliminate market barriers the E U and the U S have frequently clashed over each other s regulatory policies The aim of this book is to explore the domestic sources of cooperation or conflict in transatlantic regulation The book analyses the role of domestic factors through three theoretical lenses that are well established in the study of multilevel systems the principal agent approach the two level game metaphor and through a wider concept of institutionalism which emphasises the links between societal interests and regulatory ideas with institutional frameworks The book states that domestic factors embody more obstacles than opportunities for horizontal coordination It is argued that transatlantic relations will likely undergo a double movement of being simultaneously shifted upwards to become part of the global governance architecture and downwards towards broader involvement of legislators in regulatory matters Hence transatlantic regulation might in the near future be shaped more by political leaders rent seeking interest groups and legislators than by networks of technocrats This book was published as a special issue of the Review of International Political Economy Aiming for Global Accounting Standards Kees Camfferman, Stephen A.
