autobiographical accounts from twelve foundational figures in the field of intercultural studies. These distinguished contributors Nancy J Adler Clifford Clarke John Condon Carlos Cortes Alvino Fantini Sandra Fowler Robert Hayles Stephen Rhinesmith Fanchon Silberstein Donna Stringer Sivasailam Thiagarajan and Michael Tucker reflect on the transformative experiences that shaped their careers and the evolution of interculturalism as a discipline. Through richly personal narratives the book traces how these pioneers synthesized insights from anthropology psychology sociology communication linguistics and education to forge a new interdisciplinary field of inquiry and practice. These inspirational stories illuminate the intellectual and methodological foundations of intercultural work offering critical insights into the development of theory pedagogy and applied practice. With an introduction and conclusion by the editors that contextualize the field's emergence and contemporary relevance this volume serves as both a historical archive and a forward looking academic contribution. This book is an essential text for scholars students educators and practitioners seeking to understand the roots and future of intercultural studies. It is a compelling case study in how lived experience can shape scholarly innovation and the many varied paths leading to and within these twelve intercultural careers.

Mechanics and Mathematics of Fluids of the Differential Type D. Cioranescu, V. Girault, K.R. Rajagopal, 2016-07-29. This text is the first of its kind to bring together both the thermomechanics and mathematical analysis of Reiner Rivlin fluids and fluids of grades 2 and 3 in a single book. Each part of the book can be considered as being self contained. The first part of the book is devoted to a description of the mechanics thermodynamics and stability of flows of fluids of grade 2 and grade 3. The second part of the book is dedicated to the development of rigorous mathematical results concerning the equations governing the motion of a family of fluids of the differential type. Finally the proofs of a number of useful results are collected in an appendix.

Grading Students' Classroom Writing: Issues and Strategies Bruce W. Speck, 2000-06-26. This book offers detailed and complex guidance and the necessary techniques for grading college students writing. It examines why it is important to integrate grading into the writing process the need for effective writing assignments ensuring fair professorial judgments promoting student learning helping students learn how to respond effectively to writing and administrative support for effective grading. Sections of the book cover the writing process and grading students writing fitting evaluation with the writing process marrying writing and grading constructing writing assignments determining purpose and audience critiquing writing assignment fairness and professional judgment grading methods including students in the assessment of writing professorial authorities cheating preparing students to make informed decisions about writing quality and providing feedback for revision reading and responding to students writing common misperceptions about feedback. A final section recommends that faculty 1 tailor the writing and grading process to particular classroom situations 2 use writing to help students learn 3 not grade all writing 4 make wise use of time required for the writing and grading process and 5 integrate literature on grading into their professional reading. An appendix offers an example of a student paper with effective written comments. Contains
