

Care Act 2014

Summary

The Care Act represents the biggest overhaul of Social Care legislation in 60 years, putting people and their carers in control of their care and support. For the first time, the Act will put a limit on the amount anyone will have to pay towards the costs of their care.

There will be a considerable increase in, amongst other things, our responsibility towards carers and self-funders. Eligibility criteria will also be amended (significantly), with a minimum eligibility threshold being introduced across the country. This will be a set of criteria that makes it clear when local authorities will have to provide support to people. This, together with other significant funding reforms, will mean that the cost of Adult Social Care to local authorities is likely to increase considerably.

Particular attention should be paid to the fact that the financial support provided by the local authority will be extended by raising the upper capital limit from £23,250 to £118,000. This will increase the number of people approaching local authorities for help with their care and support. In addition, there will be a cap on the amount people have to spend on the care they need, regardless of how much they have in savings or assets. For people of retirement age the cap is £72,000, once this is reached the state will pay their care costs. Those who turn 18 with eligible care and support needs will have their needs met for free by their local authority for the rest of their lifetime. On top of this we will have increased demands placed on us in terms of assessment, provision of information and advice and means testing.

The following pages provide summarised information around what the new Act requires.

1. Promoting Wellbeing

Local authorities must promote wellbeing when carrying out any of their care and support functions in respect of a person. Wellbeing includes:

- personal dignity;
- physical and mental health and emotional wellbeing;
- protection from abuse and neglect;
- control by the individual over day-to-day life;
- participation in work, education, training or recreation;
- social and economic wellbeing;
- domestic, family and personal relationships;
- suitability of living accommodation;
- the individual's contribution to society.

2. Prevention, reducing and delaying needs

Local authorities will have a duty to ensure that the care and support system intervenes early to support people, to help people retain or regain their skills and confidence, and to prevent need or delay deterioration wherever possible. This will apply to all adults, including: people who do not have any current needs for care and support; adults with needs for care and support (whether eligible or not); and, carers. It will include such things as access to information, reduction of isolation, telecare, reablement, etc.

3. Information and advice

Local authorities must "establish and maintain a service for providing people in its area with information and advice relating to care and support for adults and support for carers". The information and advice must cover more than just the basic information about care and support, it must also address prevention, finances, health, housing, employment and safeguarding. Whilst we must establish and maintain a service, we are not required to provide all elements of this service.

4. Market shaping and commissioning adult social care and support

Local authorities will have a duty to facilitate and shape their market for adult care and support. Local authorities will be expected to influence and drive the pace of change for the whole market, leading to a sustainable and diverse range of care and support providers, continuously improving quality and choice,
