The Struggle for Democracy Edward S. Greenberg, 2014 The Journal of Parliamentary Information, 2013 The Human Right to Democracy in Multilevel Systems at a Time of Democratic Backsliding: Global, Regional and European Union Perspectives Thomas Giegerich, 2025-09-30 This open access book takes stock of the current situation of the human right to democracy in multilevel systems of government at a time of renewed struggles with antidemocratic forces democratic backsliding It tries to answer three questions 1 Is there a human right to democracy in contemporary global and regional international law as well as European Union law and what consequences does that have for the States governmental structure top down perspective on national democracy 2 Does the human right to democracy also extend to decision making at the international and supranational level bottom up perspective on international supranational democracy 3 What is the relation between national democracy and international democracy and the corresponding human entitlements interdependence perspective The first part of an answer to these questions derives from the elements of democracy proclaimed by the United Nations as a universal value The second part results from an investigation of the national and international democratic ingredients of the right of self determination of peoples whose recognition and codification is the mainstay of the human rights revolution since 1945 The third part is added by a survey and comparison of the various democratic rights included in the global and regional human rights treaties that constitute the subjective cornerstones of democracy The fourth part is devoted to analysing the EU as exemplary but imperfect multilevel democracy In all these parts the enforcement of democratic entitlements are also discussed In the fifth part conclusions will be drawn The book is addressed to international and EU law experts as well as political scientists

Political Symbols and National Identity in Timor-Leste Catherine E. Arthur, 2018-09-14 This book explores how national identity has been negotiated and reimagined through the political symbols that embody it in post conflict Timor Leste It develops a Modernist approach to nations and nationalism by incorporating Bourdieusian theories of symbolic capital and conflict to examine how national identity has been constructed and represented in political symbols

Taking case studies of flags monuments national heroes and street art it critically analyses how a diverse population has interpreted and re constructed its national identity throughout the first decade of independence and how the transition from a context of conflict to peace has influenced such popular imaginings By examining these processes of identification with a wide range of symbols the book discusses the numerous challenges that this young nation state still faces including victimhood and recognition democratization and electoral politics the political role of cosmology and spirituality and post colonial generational differences and divisions
