These last two findings, however, should not be interpreted as indicating that the two dimensions of the construct of self-esteem are equally important. In fact, the results of this study suggest that the two dimensions of self-esteem are equally important, but that the two dimensions of self-esteem are not equally important in all situations. Specifically, the results of this study suggest that the two dimensions of self-esteem are equally important in the situation of the present study, but that the two dimensions of self-esteem are not equally important in the situation of the study of Harter (1981).

The first stage shows all students as potential members of one group, to be integrated into the whole. This is a time of relative uniformity. There is little evidence of individual differences among the students, and the teacher is seen as the central figure in the group.

Inquiry Into Operations of the United States Air Services United States. Congress. House. Select Committee of Inquiry into Operations of the United States Air Services,1925 Transactions of the International Astronomical Union: Reports on Astronomy C. de Jager,2012-12-06 This volume contains the fifteenth tri annual reports of the Presidents of the forty Commissions of the International Astronomical Union it refers to the progress in our discipline during the three years 1970 1971 and 1972 As compared to earlier volumes a gradual change in character is unmistakable The ever increasing flow of publications combined with the obvious necessity to keep the Reports at a reasonable size and price level has gradually forced the Commission Presidents to be more selective than before in drafting their Reports I have certainly stimulated them into that direction in order that Reports like these be valuable and lasting it seems imperative that the individual contributions have the character of a critical overall review where a fairly complete summary is given of the major developments and discoveries of the past three years and in which the broad developments and new trends be clearly outlined while at the same time essential problems for future research are identified With respect to the latter item I have suggested the Commission Presidents to add to their reports a brief section on scientific priorities for future research in the field of their Commissions In order to save space I have suggested to Commission Presidents that references to published papers are given on the basis of their number in the published issues of Astronomy and Astrophysics Abstracts For instance the indication 06 078 019 or AAA 06 078 American Journal of Physics ,1983 Effective Astronomy Teaching and

Computer-assisted Investigative Reporting Margaret H. DeFleur,2013-11-26 Conducting computer analyses for the purposes of revealing information of significance to the press represents an extension of one of the most important forms of American journalism into the contemporary era of new technologies Investigative reporting had its start with the establishment of the metropolitan newspaper during the early decades of the 1900s At the time it was a continuation of the evolving tradition of freedom of the press that had characterized American political life since colonial times As it developed investigative reporting stressed facts rather than the opinions of the editor or reporter In turn that tradition had its own intellectual roots Today computer assisted investigative reporting CAIR extends that marketplace of ideas into systematic examinations of the electronic records of government In addition computer analyses of other kinds of information systematically gathered by journalists can provide the press with insights into trends and patterns unlikely to be revealed by other means This unique volume addresses procedures and issues in investigative journalism that have not been explained in other publications It sets forth for the first time a detailed and specific methodology for conducting computer assisted investigative analyses of both large and small scale electronic records of government and other agencies That methodology consists of the logic of inquiry strategies for reaching valid conclusions and rules for reporting what has been revealed by the analyses to the public in clear ways Such systematic methodologies are essential in social and other sciences and the development of a counterpart for investigative journalism has been badly needed That systematic methodology is developed within a context that explains the origin and major characteristics of those elements that have come together in American society to make computer assisted investigative reporting both possible and increasingly a part of standard newsroom practices These include the development of traditional investigative journalism the evolution of computer technology the use of computers by government to keep records the legal evolution of freedom of information laws the rapid adoption of computers in newsrooms the increasing importance of precision journalism and the sharp increase in recent times of computer assisted investigative reporting by American newspapers both large and small The issues addressed in this book are discussed in a very readable context with an abundance of examples and illustrations drawn from the real world of journalism as it is practiced daily in newsrooms around the country Explanations of concepts principles and procedures are set forth in layperson s terms that require very little in the way of knowledge of computers or statistical methods
