2014 Zimsec November O Level Time:

Climate Variability and Change in the 21st Century Stefanos Stefanidis, Konstantia (Dia) Tolika, 2021-01-19 Water resources management should be assessed under climate change conditions as historic data cannot replicate future climatic conditions. Climate change impacts on water resources are bound to affect all water uses i.e. irrigated agriculture, domestic and industrial water supply, hydropower generation and environmental flow of streams and rivers and water level of lakes. Bottom up approaches i.e. the forcing of hydrologic simulation models with climate change models outputs are the most common engineering practices and considered as climate resilient water management approaches. Hydrologic simulations forced by climate change scenarios derived from regional climate models RCMs can provide accurate assessments of the future water regime at basin scales. Irrigated agriculture requires special attention as it is the principal water consumer and alterations of both precipitation and temperature patterns will directly affect agriculture yields and incomes. Integrated water resources management IWRM requires multidisciplinary and interdisciplinary approaches with climate change to be an emerging cornerstone in the IWRM concept.

The Airline Revolution Gordon Mills, 2016-07-15 When starting new airlines in response to government deregulation, entrepreneurs in the U.S. and Europe reduced some traditional service qualities to reduce costs, concentrated on non-stop services between city pairs not already so connected, improved on time performance and offered low fares to win leisure travelers from the incumbents and to encourage more travel. In recent developments, some of the new airlines have offered optional extras at higher fares to attract business travelers and entered major routes alongside the legacy carriers. Within both the U.S. and Europe, deregulation removed most geographical barriers to expansion by short-haul airlines. Later, limited deregulation spread to other world regions where many short-haul routes connect city pairs in different countries and where governments have retained traditional two-country mechanisms restricting who may fly. To gain access to domestic routes in other countries, some new airlines are setting up affiliate companies in neighboring countries with each company legally controlled in the country of domicile. With air travel growing strongly, especially in Asia, a common result is intense but potentially short-lived competition on major routes. The recent developments give clear signposts to likely mid-term outcomes and make this an opportune time to report on the new airline scene. The Airline Revolution will provide valuable economic analysis of this climate to students, airline professionals, advancing to senior positions, public servants and others who provide advice to governments.

Economic Report on Africa, 2015 Military Assistance on Request and the Use of Force Erika De Wet, 2020-03-26 In countries such as Syria Iraq South Sudan and Yemen internationally recognized governments embroiled in protracted armed conflicts and with very little control over their territory have requested direct military assistance from other states These requests are often accepted by the other states despite the circumvention of the United Nations Security Council and extensive violation of international humanitarian law and human rights In this book Erika De Wet examines the authority entitled to extend a request for or consent to direct military assistance as well as the type of situations during which such assistance may be requested notably whether it may be requested during a civil war Ultimately De Wet addresses the question of if and to what extent the proliferation of military assistance on the request of a recognized government is changing the rules in international law applying to the use of force

Democracy, Elections, and Constitutionalism in Africa Charles M. Fombad, Nico Steytler, 2021-03-18 The third wave of democracy that reached African shores at the end of the Cold War brought with it a dramatic decline from 1990 onwards in dictatorships military regimes one party governments and presidents for life Multiparty democracy was at the core of the constitutional revolutions that swept through most of Africa in those watershed years However that wave is either losing momentum or receding or being reversed in its entirety This volume examines democracy and elections in Africa a focus motivated by two concerns First after 30 years it is important to take stock of the state of constitutional democracy on the continent The democratic gains of the 1990s and 2000s seem to be falling by the wayside with the evidence mounting that regimes are concealing authoritarianism under the veneer of elections doing so in an international context where populist regimes are on the rise and free and fair multiparty elections are consequently no longer a given It is becoming a battle to protect and retain constitutional democracy The second reason for this volume s focus on democracy and elections is that multiparty democracy is essential for the proper functioning of the state in addressing the major problems facing Africa internal conflict inequality and lack of development and poor governance and corruption The focus of this volume is thus on how competitive politics or multiparty democracy can be realized and how through competition such politics could lead to better policy and practice outcomes
