Experimental Reversal of Acid Rain Effects Hans Hultberg, Richard Skeffington, 1998-02-04 Acid deposition is considered to be one of the greatest threats to the environment in industrialised countries Recognising this governments have instituted programmes to reduce emissions of SO₂ and NO_x the major sources of acid rain But is this enough Will ecosystems damaged by acid rain recover And if they do how quickly What ecosystem processes determine the rate of recovery Do acidification models give accurate predictions Are any other actions necessary to promote recovery To answer such questions without waiting for the results of current policies scientists in Sweden and the UK decided to eliminate acid deposition on an acidified ecosystem altogether and monitor the effects They did this by constructing a huge roof over an acidified catchment near Lake Gardsjön in Southwest Sweden Acid rain falling on the roof is diverted away and replaced with clean rain The detailed responses of the ecosystem are measured This book records the results from the first five years of the Project and considers the implications for emission control The book describes the effect of eliminating acid deposition and some other pollutants on vital ecosystem processes both chemical and biological and how the predictions of acidification and hydrological models compared with experimental results It describes the covered catchment how the roof was constructed and the problems associated with such large experiments The implications for pollution control policies and what still needs to be discovered are emphasised The book should be of interest to a wide variety of environmental scientists especially those interested in pollution effects forestry freshwater fisheries and ecosystem function and to environmental managers and policymakers The Software Encyclopedia 2000 Bowker Editorial Staff,2000-05 Forest Science ,2015 AHA Perspectives ,1983 Core I Materials for Rural Agriculture Programs ,1981 Gardeners' Chronicle ,1889 Compression Wood in Gymnosperms: Occurrence of stem, branch, and root compression woods Tore E.
