

Case study on Anger Management Counselling

1. Background to the case

Robert, a Middle level executive was causing unrest in the office always making arguments with his colleagues. The team members in his team are constantly facing conflicts and the employee stress levels are increasing day by day. Robert expresses frequent angry outbursts and confronts other colleagues. The angry behavior of Robert is not only making him unrest but also consuming lot of time and de motivating others to attend their duties peacefully. As a result the employee morale in the department has decreased drastically within a quarter.

So the management of the organization seek the help of Professional counseling department to intervene into the situation and to mitigate the risks associated with such type of employee conflict due to anger. Then the Counselors made an investigation and determined that the team has to undergo training on the subject – “Conflict resolution” and made Mr. Robert a part of the total course to undergo for the sessions on angry management. This way the counselors’ won the team’s agreement to cope up with the angry behavior of others with conflict resolution techniques. Especially the counselors succeeded in including Mr. Robert in Angry Management Coaching.

Over view of the Anger Management:

Anger is a sudden outward expression of inward emotional imbalance. The things around a person or the situation may conflict with his or her expectations and that imbalance can be expressed in an unpleasant manner. Osho defines Anger as a temporary madness. People behave madly and unbecomingly when they are in angry mode. The anger can be triggered by the factors like Frustration, Annoyance, Hurt, Disappointment, Harassment, Threats.

Oliver Ross in explaining the phenomenon of Anger and explaining the reason for conflict assumes that people “unrealistically expects all people to behave and all situations to turn out as they think they should”. Oliver Ross as cited in Phil Barker. Anger can vary in different forms from mild irritation to furious violence. Though anger is a natural phenomena of the Physical and biological expression and is also termed a productive tool, it can be destructive and problematic if it is not dealt properly. This stresses that Anger has to be managed properly in order to get a productive outcome.

Anger management can be practiced in three stages – 1. Managing anger before it even shows in, 2. Managing anger when you are angry, 3. Managing anger after your anger.

Also the Anger management involves counseling for different roles like – Individual who Falkner,1995 Anger and Aggression J. R. Averill,2012-12-06 In recent years a great deal has been written on the topic of aggression another book on the same topic might seem superfluous at this time However the present volume is not just or even primarily about aggres sion It is rather a book on anger Anger and aggression are closely related phenomena and it is not possible to discuss one without the other Yet not all anger is aggressive nor can all aggression be attributed to anger Therefore somewhat different considerations apply to each Even more importantly the type of theoretical generalizations one can make differs depending upon whether the primary focus is on anger or aggression The present volume is subtitled an essay on emotion This indicates that the generalizations to be drawn have more to do with emotional responses e g grief love envy etc than with various forms of aggression e g riots war crimes of violence etc Stated somewhat differently anger is here being used as a paradigm case for the study of emotion not for the study of aggression
