

CHARACTERISTICS OF STARS

Like the Sun, all stars are huge spheres of glowing gas. They are made up mostly of hydrogen and some helium, and they produce their energy by nuclear fusion. Nuclear fusion is the process where two atoms of hydrogen fuse together to form an atom of helium. This process releases a tremendous amount of energy and makes stars shine brightly. Astronomers classify stars according to their physical characteristics. These include:

1. Color
2. Temperature
3. Size
4. Brightness

A. Color and Temperature

If you look up in the night sky, you can see slight differences in the colors of stars. Like hot objects on Earth, a star's color reveals its surface temperature. If you watch a toaster heat up, the wires inside glow red hot. The wires inside a light bulb are even hotter and glow white. Stars are the same. The coolest stars, with a surface temperature of about $3,000^{\circ}\text{C}$ appear reddish. The hottest stars, with surface temperatures over $20,000^{\circ}\text{C}$ appear bluish-white.

B. Size

The stars in the sky all appear to be points of light of the same size. Many stars are actually the same size of the Sun, which is a medium-sized star. However, some stars are much larger and are called giant and supergiant stars. Most stars are much smaller than the Sun. Black and white dwarf stars are about the size of Earth. Neutron stars are even smaller, only about 20 km in diameter.

C. Brightness

The brightness of a star depends on both its size and its temperature. How bright a star looks from Earth depends on both its distance and how bright the star actually is. The brightness of a star can be described in 2 different ways: apparent brightness and absolute brightness. A star's apparent brightness is its brightness as seen from Earth. Astronomers can measure apparent brightness easily, using devices similar to those used by photographers. However, apparent brightness does not take into account how far away a star is from Earth. A star's absolute brightness is the brightness the star would have if all stars were the same standard distance from Earth. This allows astronomers to compare the brightness of all stars.

Distances on Earth are often measured using kilometres and miles. However, distances between stars are so large that kilometres are not very practical units. Astronomers use a unit called the light-year to measure the distance between stars. A light year is the distance that light travels in one year, which is roughly 9.5 million million kilometres.
