2013 November Papermemorandum:

Federal Register ,2014 Reconceptualising Unaccompanied Child Asylum Seekers and the Law Jennifer L. Whelan,2022-09-30 Unaccompanied child asylum seekers are amongst the world's most vulnerable populations and their numbers are increasing. The intersection of their age, their seeking asylum and separation from their parents creates a specific and acute triple burden of vulnerability. Their precariousness has long been recognised in international human rights law. Yet human rights based responses have been subordinated to progressive global securitisation of irregular migration through interception, interdiction, extraterritorial processing and immigration detention. Such an approach necessitates an urgent paradigm shift in how we comprehend their needs as children, the impact of punitive border control laws on them and the responsibility of States to these children when they arrive at their borders seeking asylum. This book reconceptualises the relationship between unaccompanied child asylum seekers and States. It proposes a new conceptual framework by applying international human rights law, childhood studies and vulnerability theory scholarship in analysing State obligations to respond to these children. This framework incorporates a robust analysis of the operation and impact of laws on vulnerable populations, a taxonomy for articulating the gravity of any consequent harms and a method to prioritise recommendations for reform. The book then illustrates the framework's utility using Australia's treatment of unaccompanied children as a case study. This book illuminates key learnings from human rights law, childhood studies and vulnerability theory and transforms them into a new roadmap for law reform. As such, it will be a valuable practice based resource for practitioners, non-government organisations, advocates, policymakers and the general public interested in advocating for the rights of vulnerable populations as well as for academics, researchers and students of human rights law, refugee law, childhood studies and vulnerability studies.

Self-determinable Development of Small Islands Masahide Ishihara, Eiichi Hoshino, Yoko Fujita, 2016-06-14 This book aims to clarify the present situation of the relations between small island countries and territories on the one hand and the great powers' mainland areas and mega islands on the other and explores how small island countries and territories preserve and build their identity under globalization. This book is divided into five parts. The first part presents papers on issues that are related to Okinawa, the American military presence, the formation of a global human network and the history of language revitalization in Okinawa. The second part includes papers on security in East Asia and the Pacific Region, the history of and present issues in international relations within the South and East China Sea areas. The third part presents papers on economic issues and social developments on small islands. The fourth part deals with ocean policies and marine resource management in the Pacific Region by the United States, Australia and Japan. Finally, the fifth part presents papers on the revitalization of three indigenous languages. All the chapters of the book are based on the achievements of the research project Towards New Island Studies: The Ryukyus as an academic node between East Asia and Oceania conducted by the International Institute for Okinawan Studies at the University of the Ryukyus. This 5 year project was funded by the Japanese Ministry of Education Culture Sports Science and Technology and aimed to contribute academically to the creation of sustainable and self determinable societies in small island regions This work will be extremely useful and informative for readers in small island countries and territories and for researchers who are interested in small island issues to understand the current situation and who wish to consider effectual and feasible solutions Dynamic Industrial Policy in Africa United Nations. Economic Commission for Africa,2014 For millions of Africans growth is yet to translate into jobs and better living conditions Africa s largely commodity driven growth has not been matched by the much needed structural change that can lead to economic transformation employment and reduced poverty Market failures necessitate industrial policy interventions Yet in the absence of the right processes and institutions good industrial policies will fail Indeed weak institutions and poor policy design have hindered industrial policy This report gives a framework for getting the policy process right to foster industrialization It uses 11 country case studies to assess the critical ingredients for spurring industrialization innovative institutions effective processes and flexible mechanisms and structural transformation
