2014 Economics November Exam Scope:

YSEC Yearbook of Socio-Economic Constitutions 2020 Steffen Hindelang, Andreas Moberg, 2021-03-29 This book presents the very first interdisciplinarily grounded comprehensive appraisal of a future Common European Law on Investment Screening. Thereby it provides a foundation for a European administrative law framework for investment screening by setting out viable solutions and evaluating their pros and cons. Daimler the harbour terminal in Zeebrugge or Saxo Bank are only three recent examples of controversially discussed company takeovers in Europe. The elephant in the room is China and its Belt and Road Initiative. The political will in Europe is growing to more actively control investments flowing into the EU. The current regulatory initiatives raise several fundamental constitutional and regulatory issues. Surprisingly they have not been addressed in any depth so far. The book takes stock of the current rather fragmented regulatory approaches and combines contributions from leading international academics, practitioners and policy makers in their respective fields. Due to the volume's comprehensive approach it is expected to influence the broader debate on the EU's upcoming regulation of this matter. The book is addressed to participants from academia as well as to representatives from government, business and civil society.

Loss Coverage Guy Thomas, 2017-05-11 A novel book that argues that contrary to received wisdom, some adverse selection in insurance markets is beneficial to society as a whole. It is for all those interested in public policy arguments about insurance and discrimination: policymakers, academics, actuaries, underwriters, disability activists, geneticists and other medical professionals.

Socio-economics of trawl fisheries in Southeast Asia and Papua New Guinea Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 2018-06-06 These studies on the role of trawl fisheries for food security and the potential impacts of management measures reveal major differences across countries in fishing practices including crew demographics and income sharing arrangements.

The Impact of Select Commodities and US Indices on Nifty 50 Index Shrey Raithatha, 2025-05-15 Research Paper, undergraduate from the year 2025 in the subject Business economics, Investment and Finance, grade 8.5, course Bachelor of Business Administration, language English, abstract.

This study examines the impact of key commodities and U.S. stock indices on the Nifty 50 index using advanced econometric techniques to analyze both short-term and long-term relationships. The research focuses on crude oil prices, gold prices, the USD/INR exchange rate, the S&P 500 and the Dow Jones Industrial Average, assessing their influence on the Indian stock market over the period from January 2014 to November 2024. Employing time series models such as the Augmented Dickey-Fuller ADF test, ARIMA, Granger causality, Johansen cointegration, Vector Error Correction Model (VECM) and GARCH, the study identifies significant interdependencies between these financial variables. The stock market serves as a crucial component of a nation's financial ecosystem, playing a pivotal role in capital formation, investment opportunities and economic stability. As one of the most actively traded financial markets, the Indian stock market is significantly influenced by a variety of economic and financial variables, including commodity prices, exchange rate fluctuations and global market trends.

Among these factors crude oil prices gold prices and the USD INR exchange rate have been extensively studied due to their profound impact on economic activities and market volatility Additionally the influence of major US stock indices such as the S P 500 and the Dow Jones Industrial Average has gained increasing attention as global financial markets become more interconnected

Economic Development for Everyone Mark M. Miller, 2017-05-09 How do we create employment grow businesses and build greater economic resilience in our low income communities How do we create economic development for everyone everywhere including rural towns inner city neighborhoods aging suburbs and regions such as Appalachia American Indian reservations the Mexican border and the Mississippi Delta and not just in elite communities Economic Development for Everyone collects organizes and reviews much of the current research available on creating economic development in low income communities Part I offers an overview of the harsh realities facing low income communities in the US today their many economic and social challenges debates on whether to try reviving local economies vs relocating residents and current trends in economic development that emphasize high tech industry and high levels of human capital Part II organizes the sprawling literature of applied economic development research into a practical framework of five dynamic dimensions empower your residents begin with basic education enhance your community build on existing assets encourage your entrepreneurs diversify your economy and sustain your development This book assembled and presented in a unified framework will be invaluable for students and new researchers of economic development in low income communities and will offer new perspectives for established researchers professional economic developers and planners and public officials Development practitioners and community leaders will also find new ideas and opportunities along with a broad view on how the many complex parts of economic development interconnect

The Economics of Protected Marine Species: Concepts in Research and Management Kristy Wallmo, Kathryn Bisack, Daniel K. Lew, Dale E. Squires, 2016-10-21 Protected marine species have populations that are depleted decreasing or are at risk of extinction or local extirpation As of 2015 The International Union for the Conservation of Nature a global environmental organization lists approximately 737 marine species worldwide that are considered at risk of extinction Many are provided legal protection through national laws requiring research and management measures aimed at recovering and maintaining the species at a sustainable population level Integral to the policy decision process involving the management and recovery of marine species is the consideration of trade offs between the economic and ecological costs and benefits of protection This suggests that economics at its core the study of trade offs has a significant role In the U S a somewhat traditional use of economics in protected species research and management has involved cost minimization or cost effectiveness analyses to help select or prioritize conservation actions Economic research has also provided estimates of public non market benefits of recovering species which can be used in larger management frameworks such as ecosystem based management and coastal and marine spatial planning Inherent in much of this research however are complex biological and ecological relationships in which varying degrees of scientific uncertainty are present Addressing this type of uncertainty can affect the economic outcomes related to protected species For example recent work suggests that increasing scientific precision in biological sampling and models can greatly affect the magnitude of economic benefits to commercial fisheries while other research suggests that public non market benefits of species recovery are sensitive to uncertainty about baseline population estimates Previous research has illustrated the importance of understanding the biological ecological and economic aspects of protected species management and recovery In this research topic we synthesize current protected marine species economic research and expand the discussion on present and future challenges related to protected species economics The series of manuscripts brings together an array of prominent researchers and advances our understanding of the ecological and economic aspects of managing and recovering protected marine species

The Human Rights Covenants at 50 Daniel Moeckli,Helen Keller,Corina Heri,2018-06-06 Half a century ago on 16 December 1966 the UN General Assembly adopted the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights ICCPR and the International Covenant on Economic Social and Cultural Rights ICESCR While the adoption of the two UN human rights covenants was celebrated all over the world their 50th anniversary has received very little attention from the international community The present book marks this anniversary by taking stock of the first half century of the existence of what are probably the world s two most important human rights treaties It does so by reflecting on what the covenants have achieved or failed to achieve in the years that have passed by determining and comparing their current influence in the various regions of the world and by assessing their potential roles in the future The book contains papers that were presented during a symposium held in Zurich in 2016 which brought together experts and stakeholders from a range of disciplines and world regions Some fundamental issues that are addressed by the contributors are as old as the two covenants themselves They concern for example the division of human rights into first and second generation rights and the question of whether there should be one central monitoring body possibly a world court or more than just one However the contributors go beyond such questions that have been explored before they develop new answers to old questions and point to new challenges
