An African Centered Response to Ruby Payne's Poverty Theory Jawanza Kunjufu, 2006

Challenges Ruby Payne's theories about the impact of class differences and economics on teaching and learning putting forward other factors as better predictors of student performance Kunjufu points to success stories in schools that serve low income students His refutation of Payne's popular teacher training program asserts that teacher expectations time on task and the principal's leadership are the main factors in determining educational outcomes at a school Abandoning Payne's framework of teacher student income disparities racial makeup and per pupil expenditure this critical analysis asserts the human component as the most powerful tool for improving education in failing schools

The Way Out Ted Williams, 2014-08-08

The African American community represents a paradox of sorts While collective success has been achieved in many areas African Americans still disproportionately suffer from a variety of social ills The residual effects from years of slavery and exclusion from the major institutions of American life are still trenchant Yet there is hope As we move forward into a new millennium our greatest answers can be found by exploring the past The Christian faith has served as a sustaining force that has been the backbone of this community for generations This faith along with a holistic commitment to family political participation education and entrepreneurship are the key to its future The Way Out tackles this issue with a mature voice that represents a juxtaposition of faith and public policy It rejects the culture of partisan gridlock racial division and religious cynicism by fostering a fresh and pluralistic discourse about the greatest solutions for our most pressing civic challenges From the experienced policymaker to the common citizen wanting to make a difference The Way Out provides tangible solutions through which we can all find ways to engage It stands firmly at the intersection of religion race politics and culture to light a clear path forward
