

Some people enjoy change, and they look forward to new experiences. Others like their lives to stay the same, and they do not change their usual habits. Compare these two approaches to life. Which approach do you prefer? Explain why.

Some people like to live in the same house, have the same job and habits all their lives. However, others aspire to changes and new experience. Personally, for the several reasons, which I will explain bellow, I prefer the first approach to life.

First of all, changes in one's life bring many benefits. One tries new things, gains new knowledge and experience. I think it is great because without changes life becomes boring. I always try to make changes in my life. Moreover, when I feel that my life is boring I do not feel well about it. I feel like I spent those days for nothing. I did not do anything exiting, I learnt nothing interesting and I just wasted my time.

Second of all, people need changes. Furthermore, we need obstacles to overcome and reach our goals. I believe that changes make us stronger, more persistent, more self-confident, and more patient. Also, I feel that all people who succeeded in life like changes and new experience because it is impossible to be the best at some field without perfecting the present knowledge and gain new experience. People catch every opportunity to learn more and change their life for the best.

From the other side, people who like their lives to stay the same are very permanent. They have the same job all their life, the same habits, the same week-ends and even the same years in years out. I think it is boring. What will they tell their children about their lives? What kind of contribution will they make for the society? I think such people are just afraid of changes.

I think curiosity and aspiration to the new experience are two of the main reasons of human evolution. People always wanted to break limits and gain more knowledge and experience. So, people who enjoy change are the engine of human development.

Downie Thomas Babington Macaulay Baron Macaulay, 1900 Dynamics of Effective Secondary Teaching, 2004 Dynamics of Effective Secondary Teaching integrates theory and research with current classroom practice to help future and in service secondary teachers make instructional and management decisions for the purpose of improving instruction Realistic scenarios numerous examples and illustrations from all subject areas classroom observation forms and valuable websites are what makes this text so practical providing preservice teachers a direct link to classroom practice As with previous editions the major feature of this book is the authors emphasis on decision making as the thread that links all the topics together Decision making is introduced in Chapter 1 as a process fundamental to educators and is revisited to enforce the application in each chapter The authors view of decision making considers it from a constructivist view of teaching and learning based on reflection and meaning making Unique to this book is the inclusion in each chapter of a scenario in which a middle or secondary school teacher representing a wide range of subject areas and grade levels applies key ideas to the classroom. These scenarios which appear near the beginning of each chapter are referred to and analyzed throughout the chapter to provide a running commentary on the theoretical content being presented. Examination bulletin University of the State of New York, 1898 Annual Report University of the State of New York.
