Geobiotechnological Solutions to Anthropogenic Disturbances Mark Anglin Harris,2016-09-22 This book offers a problem and solution approach to environmental remediation in mining including the environmentally sustainable utilization of waste materials from the mining industry It largely comprises articles published in Springer journals which have been thoroughly revised and expanded With supplementary data and illustrations it discusses specific problem areas in relevant Caribbean locations and provides an overview of geotechnical and microbial solutions to prevent post mining deterioration in this area

The determinants and extent of crop diversification among smallholder farmers: A case study of Southern Province, Zambia Sichoongwe, Kiru,Mapemba, Lawrence,Ng'ong'ola, Davies,Tembo, Gelson,2014-06-13 This study analyzed the determinants of crop diversification as well as the factors influencing the extent of crop diversification by smallholder farmers in Southern province The study used secondary data from the Central Statistical Office of Zambia Results from a double hurdle model analysis indicates that landholding size fertilizer quantity distance to market and the type of tillage mechanism adopted have a strong influence on whether a farmer practices crop diversification Our findings have important implications for policies that are designed to enhance crop diversification In particular our results suggest the need for government to consider undertaking policies that will enhance farmers access to and control over land that will provide farmers with improved access to agricultural implements like ploughs and that will bring trading markets closer to farmers

Global Environment Outlook - GEO-6: Healthy Planet, Healthy People UN Environment,2019-06-06 Published to coincide with the Fourth United Nations Environmental Assembly UN Environment's sixth Global Environment Outlook calls on decision makers to take bold and urgent action to address pressing environmental issues in order to protect the planet and human health By bringing together hundreds of scientists peer reviewers and collaborating institutions and partners the GEO reports build on sound scientific knowledge to provide governments local authorities businesses and individual citizens with the information needed to guide societies to a truly sustainable world by 2050 GEO 6 outlines the current state of the environment illustrates possible future environmental trends and analyses the effectiveness of policies This flagship report shows how governments can put us on the path to a truly sustainable future emphasising that urgent and inclusive action is needed to achieve a healthy planet with healthy people This title is also available as Open Access on Cambridge Core

Diversifying Farming Systems for Adaptive Capacity Timothy Bowles,Selena Ahmed,Patrick Baur,Margiana Petersen-Rockney,2022-02-01 Agricultural extension in transition worldwide Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations ,2020-04-01 This publication contains twelve modules which cover a selection of major reform measures in agricultural extension being promulgated and implemented internationally such as linking farmers to markets making advisory services more demand driven promoting pluralistic advisory systems and enhancing the role of advisory services within agricultural innovation systems The reform issues consider the changing roles of the various public private and non governmental providers and highlights the collaboration required to create synergies for more efficient and effective high quality services responding to the needs and demands of smallholder farmers The modules draw on reform experiences worldwide and provide an introduction definitions and a discussion for each specific reform measure as well as case studies tools exercises and a reference list The reform topics are envisaged for policy makers management and senior staff of institutions providing agricultural and rural advisory services It can also be very useful for students studying agriculture rural development and extension in particular This is a substantially updated version of the 2009 publication of the same title but with only nine modules These nine modules were restructured and up dated and three modules were added The layout of the modules changed to allow a better overview for the reader

The Microbial Regulation of Global Biogeochemical Cycles Johannes Rousk, Per Bengtson, 2014-10-17 Global biogeochemical cycles of carbon and nutrients are increasingly affected by human activities So far modeling has been central for our understanding of how this will affect ecosystem functioning and the biogeochemical cycling of carbon and nutrients These models have been forced to adopt a reductive approach built on the flow of carbon and nutrients between pools that are difficult or even impossible to verify with empirical evidence Furthermore while some of these models include the response in physiology ecology and biogeography of primary producers to environmental change the microbial part of the ecosystem is generally poorly represented or lacking altogether The principal pool of carbon and nutrients in soil is the organic matter The turnover of this reservoir is governed by microorganisms that act as catalytic converters of environmental conditions into biogeochemical cycling of carbon and nutrients The dependency of this conversion activity on individual environmental conditions such as pH moisture and temperature has been frequently studied On the contrary only rarely have the microorganisms involved in carrying out the processes been identified and one of the biggest challenges for advancing our understanding of biogeochemical processes is to identify the microorganisms carrying out a specific set of metabolic processes and how they partition their carbon and nutrient use We also need to identify the factors governing these activities and if they result in feedback mechanisms that alter the growth activity and interaction between primary producers and microorganisms By determining how different groups of microorganisms respond to individual environmental conditions by allocating carbon and nutrients to production of biomass CO<sub>2</sub> and other products a mechanistic as well as quantitative understanding of formation and decomposition of organic matter and the production and consumption of greenhouse gases can be achieved In this Research Topic supported by the Swedish research councils programme Biodiversity and Ecosystem Services in a Changing Landscape BECC we intend to promote this alternative framework to address how cycling of carbon and nutrients will be altered in a changing environment from the first principle mechanisms that drive them namely the ecology physiology and biogeography of microorganisms and on up to emerging global biogeochemical patterns This novel and unconventional approach has the potential to generate fresh insights that can open up new horizons and stimulate rapid conceptual development in our basic understanding of the regulating factors for global biogeochemical cycles The vision for the research topic is to facilitate such progress by bringing together leading scientists as proponents of several disciplines By bridging Microbial Ecology and Biogeochemistry connecting microbial activities at the micro scale to carbon fluxes at the ecosystem scale and linking above and belowground ecosystem functioning we can leap forward from the current understanding of the global biogeochemical cycles

Human Development Report 2013 United Nations Development Programme,2013 The pace of transformations around the world is extraordinarily swift and the consequences will be profound The rapid emergence of the Global South will transform 21st century economics and politics in ways at least as fundamental as those witnessed in the wars and technological revolutions of the 20th century This report seeks to identify how the dynamics of power voice and wealth in the world are changing

Food-Energy-Water Systems: Achieving Climate Resilience and Sustainable Development in the 21st Century Charles Vörösmarty,Richard Lawford,Pietro Elia Campana,Donald Wuebbles,Graham Jewitt,2024-01-23 extreme weather will mean ongoing challenges to the capacity of these sectors to support human well being grow the economy and provide critical environmental services Society has yet to evaluate the resilience of FEWS to climate environmental and management stresses as it shapes strategies to support sustainable development over the next decades These issues constitute a quintessential interdisciplinary research challenge and require a well structured science agenda and supportive information services for implementing key findings that governments and stakeholders can adopt Integrated policy pathways require usable research findings applications models real time information systems and decision support systems In addition stakeholder engagement is essential to communicate the benefits and results of these approaches and to engage appropriate groups in their implementation
