

What Is Embroidery?

In 1961, archaeologists found the buried remains of a man. He died back in 3200 B.C. He was discovered near Vladivostok, Russia and was quite well dressed. His fancy fur clothing was decorated with neatly-woven fur and rows of tiny beads. Even his fur boots had decorations on them. This hunter's clothing is an early example of embroidery.

The Russian team proved that embroidery has been used for a very long time. As long as people have worn clothing, they have decorated it with stitching. Embroidery began in the Middle East and the Orient. The first people who stitched animal skins together with sinew had more than survival in mind. They also had a sense of fashion. After all, they didn't want to be embarrassed for a prehistoric version of What Not to Wear!

The history of stitching is as detailed as an embroidered tapestry. Let's look at some examples of the embroidery throughout the ages. The first form of true cloth embroidery may have been done in China in about 2,500 B.C. The Chinese used silk, thread, pearls, and precious gems to decorate their clothing. The clothing looked elegant, but it was hard to wash!
