3. Assess the target animal off the ground by supporting the front extremities when swimming. If test or use a stand is required to support the animal.
4. A computerized system to store and print individual animal scores. Standard (unintegrated) stand and chain a computerized stand with a large monitor, track displaying report.
5. Control swimming motion, resistance level, and use the all experimental footage and subsequent data recording system (including built-in automatic storage for image acquisition). Also take note of the installation of these built-in systems used for training purposes.
6. Refer to page 1.10 for more information.
