Critical development issues?* Andreas Michaelis,2014-05-21
Essay from the year 2014 in the subject Politics Topic Development Politics grade 1 5 University of Warwick language English abstract Drought and desertification threaten the livelihood of more than 1 2 billion people across 110 countries Around 2 billion people live in dry lands which occupy around 40 per cent of the earth s land surface while 90 per cent of the people who live in drylands are from DC Kingsbury et al 2012 314 Drought and desertification effect strongly the development of a country The town Baga in Nigeria was once a fisherman s village It was at the coast of the Tschad lake now it is more than 30km away from the lake The increasing desertification of the region at Tschad lake drove the city to become agriculturally centred the outcome of desertification for the local population is significant This essay argues for a strong impact of environmental problems like desertification and deforestation on the development of a country This essay wants to highlight the importance of these problems for development science The key argument of this essay is the reciprocal influence between development and environmental problems Development often generates environmental problems which in turn aggravates future development The State of the World's Refugees 2012 Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees,2012-05-31 This publication provides an accessible overview of key developments related to internal and cross border displacement of people throughout the world As well as analysing policy issues it provides a wealth of statistical tables graphs and maps Issues in Environmental Research and Application: 2012 Edition ,2013-01-10

Symposium of International Languages & Knowledge 2015 ,2015 Earth and Mind II Kim A. Kastens,Cathryn A. Manduca,2012 Articles refer to teaching at various different levels from kindergarten to graduate school with sections on teaching geologic time space complex systems and field work Each section includes an introduction a thematic paper and commentaries Social Sciences Research Journal, 2012 University of Namibia's Recent (2007-2018) Doctoral Models in a Knowledge-Economy Gurvy Kavei, 2022-10-17 Academic Paper from the year 2022 in the subject Pedagogy Higher Education grade A University of Namibia language English abstract This study had a purpose to understand the University of Namibia UNAM's Doctoral Models and their performance in the recent past 2012 to present The method used was a simple desktop literature review on doctoral studies the Namibian economy state of higher education in the country UNAM's Policies and Practices on Doctoral studies and performance of UNAM's doctoral programs It was found that the university is conformant to most international and national doctoral standards As such there cannot be much doubt in terms of the quality of doctoral degrees that UNAM produces However limited doctoral supervisor's capacity over dependent on PhD by research mode ignoring many other approaches and the linkage of university financing formula to enrolment figures than to graduate figures a disincentive to potential supervisors are critically compromising the university performance with regard to numbers of PhD outputs The effect is evident in poor fairing of the University on research patents and industrial designs a clear warning that the university fall far too short of being a significant player in the aspiration of Namibia becoming a knowledge economy Therefore the study strongly recommends a change in the University financing formula by government to take into account institutional outputs investing more training and development for supervisory capacity as well as more public investment into the production of intellectual property to enable the university to compete with its peers locally regionally and internationally Future empirical tracer study research need to narrow on the role PhD graduates play in a knowledge economy

Gender and environmental security Nathaniel Stevenson Odusola, 2020-09-08 Research Paper postgraduate from the year 2018 in the subject Gender Studies grade 100 course Governance and Public Policy language English abstract This research essay examined the experiences of women as regards environmental insecurity as well as the gendered ideas of virtue and vulnerability on climate change The argument that men's activities are more harmful to the environment is valid because men are adventurous They develop all the different forms of technologies that hurt the environment Whereas women are virtuous because they are sensitive to the environmental impact of humankind thus they are always on the lookout for new ways to protect the environment from degradation The fact that women are less empowered particularly in under developed nations makes them vulnerable to the adverse effect of climate change This aspect of the society where women have no voice in the decision making of the society makes women vulnerable to the outcome of the policy adopted by the male counterparts That is the reason analysts and policymakers alike are calling for policy mainstreaming on climate change that puts the women at the forefront of policy formulation and administration The consequence of not allowing women to take part in policy formulation and administration concerning the environment is that any policy made concerning climate change would be ineffective as the male counterparts would not be able to relate issues that affect the women adequately The various schools of thoughts that argued for and against the adverse impact of environmental degradation against women acknowledge the fact that women are vulnerable. The less developed nations are the worse affected because they lack the relevant technology to manage the impact of climate change. Another reason for the impact of climate change has to do with being unable to manage conflict. The challenges that women face climate change have to do with water management the effect that the environment encounter cannot be under estimated when analyzed alongside the hardship it brings to women. The impact of climate change affects the supply of water apart from other health implications that climate change has on society. Women are vulnerable to environmental difficulties. The argument that women are more environmentally virtuous and can predict the climate more efficiently is valid.
