40 Years of Relative Age Effects in Sport: Lessons from the Past and Directions for the Future Adam Leigh Kelly, Joe Baker, Kathryn Johnston, Alexander B. T. McAuley, 2025-12-18 You can submit your manuscript through either Frontiers in Sports and Active Living or Frontiers in Psychology Please select the journal that best aligns with the focus of your research when you click submit 2024 marks the 40th anniversary of Grondin Deshaies and Nault's 1984 seminal work on relative age effects in sport During their study of competitive youth and professional ice hockey and volleyball in North America Grondin and colleagues showed how those born in the first months of the selection year were overrepresented whereas those born in the last months of the selection year were underrepresented in ice hockey although such discrepancies were not observed in their volleyball sample Shortly after Barnsley Thompson and Barnsley 1985 reaffirmed these results in North American ice hockey whereby they showed similar findings which they termed as relative age effects Barnsley and colleagues suggested how the age band structures used to group athletes leads to a number of potentially talented ice hockey players not achieving the level of performance that would accurately reflect their ability Since then these two inaugural studies have inspired and informed hundreds of relative age research methodologies across the globe Despite their initial warnings however these effects have proven very difficult to reduce or eliminate in high performance sport systems The current relative age research field has consistently reaffirmed some important realities Most noteworthy relative age effects are widespread throughout boys and girls sport and are having important implications on the identification selection and development of young athletes This is having a direct impact on the long term performance participation and personal development outcomes in sport too Moreover relative age effects are often magnified in more popular sports i.e. basketball football rugby and when competition level increases i.e. progress into talent pathways Whilst there is considerable research that has identified relative age effects across different sport contexts and despite consistent recommendations from researchers and practitioners little has been done to examine and employ potential solutions In addition although there are some hypothetical explanatory efforts limited empirical studies are available to show the exact causes of relative age effects in youth sport Such studies would offer value in helping us to create possible solutions for different sports and settings The 40th anniversary of the original studies on relative age effects in sport offers a timely opportunity to reflect on what has evolved in both research and practice It also provides an impetus to look forward to ensure we are creating effective and efficient development pathways for all athletes In order to realise these aims it will be important for this research topic to capture methodologies that review the widespread literature across different sport settings as well as implement theoretical frameworks to help better understand how relative age effects occur Furthermore in order to impact real life settings i.e. not just on paper but what is reflected in practice we must design implement and evaluate different relative age solutions across all sporting environments Since different sports are likely to require bespoke solutions e.g. age and anthropometric bandings

may be more suitable for team sports whereas birthday banding corrective adjustments and proficiency level based competition may be more useful for racket timed and combat sports respectively it will be important to continue examining the mechanisms of relative age effects through multi inter disciplinary perspectives e g technical tactical physical psychological social so targeted strategies can be developed Whilst we welcome submissions from a diverse range of research methodologies potential contributions are expected to align with one of the following five areas 1 Offer theoretically driven perspectives of relative age effects 2 Examine multi inter disciplinary characteristics that contribute towards relative age effects 3 Design implement and or evaluate relative age strategies and solutions 4 Explore the direct i e related to the athlete e g maturational dis advantages and indirect i e related to the environment e g coach perceptions that an athlete is more talented effects of relative age to help explain how they occur 5 Synthesise areas of relative age research in sport through reviews

Athletes' Human Rights and the Fight Against Doping: A Study of the European Legal Framework Bart van der Sloot, Mara Paun, Ronald Leenes, 2020-01-23

This book addresses the tension between on the one hand anti doping practices and measures and on the other hand the fundamental rights of athletes New techniques for testing and re testing samples taken several years ago have caused a push by the World Anti Doping Agency and affiliated organizations for stricter rules more doping tests and higher sanctions Meanwhile many States are adopting new laws and regulations to facilitate this push At the same time privacy and data protection have gained new momentum especially in the European Union where the General Data Protection Regulation came into effect in May 2018 It contains new obligations for data controllers and processors rights for data subjects and sanctions for those violating the data protection rules It is clear that gathering whereabouts information on athletes collecting urine and blood samples analyzing the samples and using the data distilled there from falls within the scope of the data protection framework In addition European athletes can invoke their rights to privacy fair trial and freedom from discrimination as guaranteed by the European Convention on Human Rights The book is aimed at professionals and organizations involved in sports and anti doping and provides them with an opportunity to delve into and understand the rights guaranteed to athletes within the European context Furthermore it is equally relevant for privacy and data protection lawyers and human rights scholars wishing to familiarize themselves with the difficult questions relating to human rights protection in the world of sport and anti doping Written in accessible language it should also prove useful to athletes and laymen wanting to learn about the rules applicable to almost everyone who practices sport even at a local amateur level Bart van der Sloot is senior researcher at Tilburg University Tilburg The Netherlands Mara Paun is PhD researcher at Tilburg University Tilburg The Netherlands Ronald Leenes is professor at Tilburg University Tilburg The Netherlands
