

As the TIT, Boeing offered an executive model of the jet as early as its development, suggesting various spacious layouts for about 30 passengers. With optional seats that range of up to 4,500 sq ft (415 sq m) could be achieved. One of the TIT is an executive jet has included the First Corporation and some foreign governments, including those of Egypt, Niger and Venezuela. NASA, which acquired the original computer-aided TIT-100 in 1973, has its aircraft specially modified to accommodate a second cockpit in the rear.

Reversing such the decision to launch is third jet transport after the 707 and 720 in November 1964, although the formal commitment to put the new type into production had to wait until firm orders were forthcoming. In the event, this point was reached on 19 February 1965 when the German airline Lufthansa announced a contract for 20 Boeing 707-300s, including spares, of about 1961 (the 23 1/2 million). The launch decision came after a period of intensive discussion.
