Performance

Assessment Brian McLean Semple, 1992 The second International Assessment of Educational Progress focused on the mathematics and science achievement of 13 year olds. Performance assessments were used as part of the overall assessment in four countries England, Scotland, Soviet Union and Taiwan and five Canadian provinces. The performance assessment approach drew heavily on the experience of the United Kingdom in such assessments but added features to meet the needs of an international study. The performance tasks required students to apply concepts, observe, measure, manipulate equipment and materials and record and interpret data. Approximately 3 000 students participated in the 1991 mathematics and science assessments. Scores varied widely from task to task and from country to country. Relative performance of countries and provinces generally differed from those identified by written curriculum based tests. A major lesson learned from the experimental test administration is that this form of performance assessment can be used reliably in international comparative studies although at an estimated cost three to four times greater than that for an equivalent number of written test questions. Sample mathematics and science tasks are included and there is an appendix on problem solving in mathematics that describes outcomes produced by Scottish students SLD.

Perspectives on Performance Assessment and Students with Disabilities Martha L. Thurlow,1994 This booklet examines national and state educational reform in the 1990s noting the ways in which performance assessment is being presented as a mechanism of reform Three reform initiatives are examined national education goals standards and reform legislation In conjunction with these reform movements new methods of assessment are being called for Large amounts of money and excitement have surrounded national and state reform activities that either directly or indirectly are connected to the idea of performance based assessments Major national data collection efforts have changed to adopt the performance assessment approach including the National Assessment of Educational Progress and the National Adult Literacy Survey Participation of students with disabilities in national assessments is problematic constrained by the lack of accommodations The use of performance assessment is also increasing in statewide assessment programs requiring that accommodations and adaptations for students with disabilities be considered There is some evidence that the use of performance assessments may not benefit students with disabilities and to date their use has not increased the participation of students with disabilities but they hold the possibility of more equitable student measurement Contains 43 references JDD
